

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus comprising establishing a direct call interface for modules to communicate that includes an initial communication between modules using messages. The messages include the functions supported by the modules along with pointers to the functions. Subsequent communications between modules use the pointers to the functions to communicate.